Estil died July 28, 1986 in Prichard, West Virginia, at 35 years of age.

28 July 1986 PRICHARD, W.Va. - An Ashland man and two West Virginia men were killed at about 6 p.m. Monday in a head-on collision of two tractor-trailers on U.S. 52, police reports from the Wayne post of the West Virginia State Police said this morning.

Estil Picklesimer, 35, of Ashland, was northbound in a loaded coal truck when a southbound tractor-trailer dump truck loaded with stone passed in the no-passing zone in excess of 60 miles per hour and struck the coal truck with an "awesome impact," said Trooper Greg Farley, who investigated the accident.

The southbound truck was owned by Kirk Truck Co. of Warfield, Ky. and driven by Gregory Allen "Porky" Kirk. William Kenny Muncey was the passenger. Both were 18 and from East Kermit in Mingo County, W. Va.

The coal truck was owned by Brownton Fuel of Cannonsburg. The truck driven by Picklesimer left about 200 feet of skid marks in an apparent attempt to avoid the collision, Farley said. The southbound truck left no skid marks.

The truck hauling stone, owned by the driver's father, exploded on impact, burning Kirk and Muncey beyond recognition, officers and volunteer fire fighters said. The cab of the northbound truck was thrown into the southbound lane, Farley said.

Picklesimer died enroute to Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, he said.

As a result of the wreckage and spilled coal and stone, the highway was closed until about midnight, Farley said.

Picklesimer was the son of John and Martha Picklesimer of Oldtown. He had been living at the Ashland Motor Lodge while driving trucks for Brownton.

In addition to his parents, Picklesimer is survived by his son, Travis M. Picklesimer of Cincinnati, three brothers, Kenneth Picklesimer of Chesapeake, Ohio, George Picklesimer and Stanley Picklesimer, both of Oldtown; and a sister, Patricia Picklesimer of Oldtown.

He married four times. He married Leah Marian Cornbloom. Leah was born in London, England January 19, 1923. She married Barrington Hood in London, England, March 1946. He married Allene Jenkins June 11, 1943. Allene was born July 4, 1923. He married Josephine Roberts in Pike County, Kentucky, September 4, 1945. Edward Burton Picklesimer served in the Army Air Corps during WW II. His plane was shot down over Germany in 1944 and in the process of parachuting from the plane his neck was broken. He was captured and was held a prisoner of war for about two months. He was well cared for by the Germans, and this was thought to be because of Edward's German heritage. He was shipped back to the states after the field hospital where he was being held was taken by the allied forces.

While stationed in England, Edward was keeping company with Leah Marian Cornbloom. After Edward was shot down in 1944 it was assumed that he was killed in action. Leah gave birth to a child by Edward, March 1, 1945, and she was named Sandra Picklesimer.

Leah stated that conception was on June 5, 1944. This would coincide with the fact that the crew of "By-Golly" were qualified for a seven day leave on June 1. An Article in the magazine, "Air Combat" gave the following account:

"Captain West decided to take his leave in Scotland, while other members of the crew decided to take their leave in London."

I received a phone call in March of 1995 from Paul Christ, a son of Sandra Picklesimer. He was in search of his American heritage and did not know anything other than the name of his grandfather was Edward Picklesimer. After the exchange of some information, I determined that the logical candidate was Edward Burton. A picture of Ed was sent to Paul along with additional information on the events leading up to Edward being shot down over Germany. From this information and the photograph, it was determined that Edward Burton was his grandfather. He then sent me a copy of the photograph that his mother had of her father. It was determined that they were one and the same person.

The following information was provided by Barry Trimble, Floyd's son.

After graduation from high school, Floyd went to work in Springfield. He was a member of management at Sears Roebuck and eventually went to work at West Side Auto Parts as a salesman. Floyd excelled in his position and worked there for about 20 years. (He said that he had the best job in the world... He went out every day visiting his friends.)

After the auto parts store began changing their sales strategy to direct consumer sales and cutting the commission paid to the salesmen, he quit that job and went to work for Bowman Distribution selling bolts and other industrial supplies. This job led him to the opportunity to create and supply fixtures for the Painting Line at the newly opened Honda Motors of America, Inc. in Marysville, OH. This quickly evolved into his own business. The business was called CMT Machining Enterprises, Inc. It grew rapidly under his guidance and eventually outgrew the original shop building. He then moved it to the Kingscreek near Urbana, OH.

Floyd also had a small farm between Mingo, OH and North Lewisburg, OH. He raised hogs during the time that he worked for Bowman as a salesman. When CMT began using all of his time, he sold the hogs and just raised the occasional beef cow and a couple of horses.
