The first time I came across the descendants of the four brothers was from Sue Holden's " The Burchetts Of Eastern Kentucky ". I have strived to find out more about these four brothers-- Benjamin, Drury, Thomas and Armstead. My research has brought much excitement and grief. Not to mention the enormous amount of information about the ancestors of the four brothers. It all started with a man who came to America from England to have a new life in the new world. His name is Edward Burchett. He came to America in the year 1665. All the Burchetts in America descends from this Burchett. There were others before him but they decided to go back to England. In those times, it was very hard to survive in America. Food shortage was a problem, the King would persecute the new arrivals. The King would only give land to the Noble Families. While others would have to work to have a piece for themselves or have money between them. Many migrated to America to seek refuge from the King but found out it was harder to live in America than Eglan. One Burchett decided to stay. Edward was born in Chatham, Kent County, England 1640. Three years after his marriage to Mary ?, born 1644, in 1662. He had two sons and a daughter born in America eight years after his arrival in 1665. Edward died 1715 Charles City, Virginia. Charles City Became a county in the year of 1623/24. In one family bible I came across, it said Edward died in Prince County. There were three Prince Countys in Virginia: Prince Edward 1754, Prince George 1703, Prince William 1731. Edward died in 1715. Prince George became a county in 1703. It couldn't be possible. Prince George was formed by dividing Charles County (One of the original shires of 1623/24). For more information, see " Virginia History ".

Robert Burchett was the first Burchett to be born in America in 1673. He was born in Charles City, Virginia. Robert married Hannah Hetford about 1693. Prince George became a county in the year of 1703 prior before his death in 1735 in Brunswick County, Virginia. The other Burchetts to be born in America was William Burchett born 1680, Elizabeth Burchett born 1675. William's wife is unknown at this time. Elizabeth married Robert Lundy. Elizabeth was born in Charles City. The known child of this union was a daughter named Burchett Lundy. William was also born in Charles City. There were records of William in Meherrin Parish, Brunswick County, Virginia. Brunswick was formed 1720 from Isle of Wight (one of the original shires of 1623/24 that later changed it's name) and Prince George County and Surry. Surry was formed in 1652 from James City (one of the original shires of 1623/24). Isle of Wight was called Warrosquyoake (one of the original shires of 1623/24). Warrosquyoake later change it's name to Isle of Wight in 1647. I found records of a Rebecca Burchett (born 1702 in Charles City, Virginia) in Brunswick County, Virginia. Rebecca married a William Lee. There was an Drury Burchett born 1722 in Brunswick County, who married Elizabeth Thweatt in the same area. I found a marriage record of a Elizabeth Thweatt and a Drury Burchett. They were married 1749. In the Thweatt family bible, it states Edward Burchett Jr. was Drury Burchett. Edward Drury Burchett Jr.. The records only states his name was Drury. Drury had a brother named Edward Jr.. Edward was a witness to Elizabeth's father's will. At this point I still couldn't connect with the first Burchett to America. If Edward Burchett was a Jr., then his father had to be an Edward also. But the Edward who came to America would of been 82 years old when Edward Drury Burchett Jr. was born in 1720. Since there is no record of an Edward Drury. It has been discounted. There has to be an Edward Burchett born about 1700. If William and Edward Burchett Jr. was in the same place, then they have to be a connection somewhere with another Edward.

I came across a land record in Charles City dating March 15, 1673. An Edward Burchett owned 351 acres and 32 poles. He had adjoining land with James Thweatt. Elizabeth Thweatt's grandfather. Drury Burchett probably met Elizabeth Thweatt there. The only conclusion I could come up with was William had a son named Edward Burchett Sr. His wife is unknown at this time.

William had a son named Robert Burchett born in the same place. His birthday is unknown but Robert died between Feb. 3, 1759- May 13, 1760. I found a will naming his children and wife as sole heirs to his estate. Edward Burchett Jr. was a witness to this document. Robert Burchett was not his father. If he was, Edward would have been mentioned. I assume Robert was an uncle to Edward Jr.. If Robert was born about 1700. He would have been 60 years old or older when he died.

Drury Burchett and Elizabeth had four known children : Drury Burchett, Elizabeth Burchett, Susannah Burchett, William Burchett. I came across the Setzer family bible stating the four brother's father-- Drury Burchett born 1750 in Brunswick County, Virginia. I have been in touch with many professional researchers through out this book. I asked their opinions on matters and they agreed on many points I just made. I also have been in touch with each of the four brother's descendants. Through out this book, you will find much of the information in order of there contents.

Many of the Burchett names were spelled Birchett and Burchett. But in the wills of these people who had their name spelled Birchett was corrected in bars with the correct name. People often spelled the Burchett name the way it sounded. There were some Virginians whose name were Birch. Confusing the name and spelling the name Burchett to Birchett. With the name Birch, you will find this name within this family bible.

Edward Burchett was born in England. He came to the new world in 1665. It is not known if he had children in England before his first child, Robert who was born in America. The will of Edward Burchett states some of his children: Found in the Prince George County Wills and Deeds. p.238

Early Times In Clinton Co, Vol I by Jack Ferguson

Pages 251-257

John Burchett, a Revolutionary War veteran from Lunenburg county, Virginia, came to this county in 1807, settling in the northern part of the county. Mrs. Eva Conner, Albany, Kentucky, said that he lived below Seventy Six Falls, on the north side of Williams creek where it emptied into Indian creek. Born in 1761, in Lunenburg county, he entered Revolutionary service from that county in the spring of 1779 as a drafted militiaman for three months. Immediately after mustering in, his company was attacked by Col. Banastre Tarleton's cavalry and a severe skirmish took place. In 1780 he was again drafted for three months. He married in Lunenburg county(114) and had five children. Several years after the war he moved to Franklin county, Virginia; records in that county show that his land was located "twelve miles south of the courthouse," which would have been toward Henry county; apparently part at least was located in the latter county.(115 Here he lived until moving to Clinton county.

An intriguing mystery surrounds John Burchett at this point, one that family researchers¹¹⁶ have as yet been unable to resolve. Apparently by the time he had moved to Franklin county, or soon after, he had left, or divorced, his first wife. in his will made in 1833 he mentions "Sally, who lives with me and has done (so) for many years past as my wife"; the wording would suggest a common-law relationship with in turn the implication that he had simply left his first wife, By Sally Burchett he had six more children. Icil Burchett was born in 1796; Burchett's first wife was still living at that time because the Henry county marriage records show that Keziah Burchett-not the father-gave consent for the marriage of her daughter Ailsey to Jacob Agee in 1800. There are several questions at this point for which we have no answers; it is possible that future research may be able to provide those answers.

John Burchett's second group of children came with him to Kentucky. Icil Burchett, the oldest, set" tied on a farm near Cartwright.

An older brother of John, William Burchett, born in 1754, also served in the Virginia Troops during the Revolution and later came to Clinton county. It is not known definitely where he settled but it was somewhere on Indian creek. Later land deeds place him in that locality.(117)

(114) His first wife was named Keziah; from the fact that one of her sons was named Bartlett it has been speculated that that was her maiden name.

(115) In his will John Burchett bequeathed to the children of his first wife "many years ago provided for" 'mv tract of land lying on Reed creek in Henry county, Virginia."

(116) Notably Mrs. Lloyd C. (Marilyn) McCluen, Rockwood, Tennessee, who has done voluminous research on the Burchett family.

(117) John Burchett purchased 50 acres from John Cape on Indian creek July 29, 1829. He sold this tract to Hardin Williams September 9, 1837.

(118) A deed in Lunenburg county, Virginia, states that Young Burchett's land was patented by his tather. Benjamin Burchett However the identification of John and William Burchett as brothers of Young Burchett and sons of Benjamin Burchett is only ten-tative only circumstantial evidence supports that identification. The will of Benjamin Burchett, filed February 14, 1788 names William Burchett and "other children." It names as executors William Burchett, John Burchett, and William Scott It is probable that the latter two are the William and John Burchett who came to Clinton county

(119) The surname Bartlett is not definite; it is assumed from the fact that one son was so named.

(120) Bartlett Burchett did not come to Clinton county with his father but remained in Virginia with his mother Soon after his mar-riage he moved to Pulaski county, Kentucky, where his name appears on the tax lists from 1815 through 1833. About 1834 he moved to this county; the tax records show him with 40 acres on Indian creek in 1837. He remained on the tax lists up to 1857; this may be the date of his death His wife Nancy died prior to the 1860 Census.

Before 1820 Keziah Burchett with her daughter Hannah and her husband moved to Robertson county, Tennessee. Young Bur-chett is also listed on the Robertson county census for 1830. Jacob Agee, husband of Ailsey Burchett, probably settled in Wayne county, in or near the present Clinton county. He is listed on the 1820 Census as Jacob "Edge." He was on the Robertson county, Tennessee census for 1830.

(121) "John Burchett and Some of His Descendents" - Lucille Thomas Scott, 1980, National Printing, Inc., Melbourne, Florida, from which much of this Burchett data is derived, gives this date as August 16.

(122) William Burchett married Catherine Holsapple, daughter of Jacob and Nancy Holsapple, and moved to Missouri (123) Elizabeth

Miller is thought to have been a sister of Martin Miller.

(124) George W. Burchett moved to Missouri about 1858

The name Theodorick came from a man who for many years was a vestry warden of Bristol Parrish-Theodorick Bland.

Marriage records from Illinois

I recently found the marriage record of Theodorick Burchett and Mary James. They were married May 29, 1842 in Morgan Co., Ill. This means they were married after 1840 census. This raised the question of what happened to the wife and children of 1840. This Theodorick left the state of Illinois sometime between 1844 and 1847. We next find him on an Iowa State census of 1847 in the county of Wapello, Iowa. On May 26 1850 he married Mrs. Louisa (Eliza) Coram at Ft. Des Moines, Polk Co., Iowa. On the 1850 census of Polk Co., Iowa we find Theodorick Burchett, whose occupation was listed as a gunsmith, He and his wife Eliza. Also her three Children: John Coram aged 10, Mary Coram aged 6, and Bethlehem Coram aged 3. All three Coram children were born in Missouri. Another child was listed: Marion Burchett? (Burchett) aged 6. He was born in Illinois, so believe him to be Theodorick's son. Mary James was most likely the mother of Marion, then comes the question of what became of her?

In March 1851 Theodorick and Eliza (Louisa) had a son born to them. His name being Theodorick (Budd) Burchett. The proof of this I found on the 1860 Harrison co., Mo. census. At this time his age was listed as 5 years, however on the 1900 Mercer co., Mo. census his birth month and year were listed as March 1851. What became of Theodorick and Eliza, I still don't have a clue.

Historical Sketch of Clinton County

Historical Sketch of Clinton County

Clear Fork Creek, one and one-half miles south of Albany. This church, which still exists and worships at the same site, largely shaped the early history of Clinton County. It was first called the Stockton's Valley Church, but later changed its name to Clear Fork and joined with a number of newer churches in forming the Stockton's Valley Baptist Association, which today covers several Kentucky and Tennessee counties.

William Wood was a hunter, surveyor, statesman, preacher, and leader of men. He served 23 years in the Kentucky Legislature, 16 years as a senator, before Clinton County was formed, his home then being in Cumberland County. He was clerk of Stockton's Valley Association 36 years. The numerous Woods, Dentons, Stocktons and Smiths now residing in this county are mostly descendants of these pioneers and those who came in with them.

Another early settlement was around Seventy Six Falls, where one Semple built the first water mill in the county. Two of Semple's sons, born here, became prominent in public life in California. Other pioneers settled at the present site of Cartwright, among them John Wade and Icel Burchett.

John Wade's wife was a sister of Icel Burchett, named Polly. John Wade was born in Boone's Fort, on the Kentucky River. When he came to this section he brought with him his orphan niece, Betsy Henry, a granddaughter of Patrick Henry, the famous Revolutionary orator of Virginia. Betsy Henry became the wife of Icel Burchett and they left many descendants who have played a prominent part in the affairs of this county and state and other states.

County Established

Clinton County was formed out of parts of Cumberland and Wayne counties, by an act of the Kentucky Legislature, passed at the 1835-36 session and approved February 20, 1836. The act provided that the new county should exist from and after the first day of April, 1836; that it should have seven justices of the peace; and that they should meet at the house of Pleasant H. Williams on the first Monday in April and organize the new county government. The Williams house later passed into the hands of William Petty, and still later Frank Burchett, by both of whom it was remodeled, and is still standing on the Burchett farm five miles northwest of Albany.

Some histories state that the county was named for Governor Dewitt Clinton of New York, and some writers have lightly assumed that Albany was named for the capital of that state. But a more interesting version has been handed down by tradition and its authenticity has been well established by many older citizens who received it direct from those who were present and participated in earliest affairs of the new county. According to this version, the county was named for Clinton Winfrey, of Columbia, the 12-year-old son of Frank Winfrey, who was then representative from Adair and Cumberland Counties in the state legislature and sponsored the act to create the county. Young Winfrey grew up to be an honored citizen of Columbia and died in the cholera plague which swept that town in the seventies.

The first county seat was established at Paoli, a pioneer village two miles south of Albany, where a large, rough log courthouse was erected. A few years later an election was held to select a permanent county seat, the candidates being Paoli, Benny Dowell's Place (now Albany), and another site some miles north. As the voters were being called out, nearly all being for Benny's place, a convivial citizen stood by shouting "All-fer-Ben-ny" or "All-Benny." The crowd, perhaps many of them enjoying spirits frumenti, after the manner of the times, took up the cry and developed it into "Albany", and all agreed that the baby had been named.

Benny Dowell lived in a brick house which until recently stood on the lot where D. C. Dabney now lives, at the corner of Washington and Water streets. Robert Cross lived on the opposite corner about where Dr. E. A. Barnes now lives. Dowell owned the land eastward from the present Washington Street and Cross owned a mile to the south, west and north of his house. He had an apple orchard covering most of the future town. Dowell and Cross donated a tract of one-fourth mile square for the new town, which was laid out in lots and sold to provide building funds for a courthouse and jail. The first building county judge was William Cross, a Hardshell Baptist preacher and a brother of Robert Cross, founder of Albany. William Cross married a daughter of Peter Brents, the first settler in present Wago or Burchett community, near where the Pleasant H. Williams house stands. Among the many descendants of Judge Cross have been several men of distinction, including two later county judges, John A. Perkins and Killis E. Huddleston; another Baptist preacher named William Cross; a Union veteran, John R. Hopkins; and Kentucky's present state treasurer, Elam Huddleston. Mrs. Julia Smith, of Albany, is a granddaughter of Judge Cross. In his old age, after his first wife had died, Judge Cross married Mrs. Dennis Hopkins, the mother of Pleasant H. Hopkins, another distinguished judge of the Clinton County court. This Mrs. Hopkins was also the mother of Elijah Hopkins, who was the father of John R. Hopkins, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Huddleston and Mrs. Julia Smith.

Civil War

Clinton County, being on the border line between the Union and Confederate States in the Civil War, suffered great hardships from the operations of both armies, and especially from the degradations and merciless cruelties of the irresponsible bands of bushwhackers and gorillas which roved the border country. Champ Ferguson, a native of East Tennessee, who had settled on Spring Creek in Clinton County several years before the war, became one of the most daring and famous of gorilla leaders on the Southern side and many killings of Union soldiers and sympathizers in Clinton County were attributed to him and his men. At the close of the war Ferguson was tried by court martial at Nashville and hanged for murder, according to accepted history, although some writers claim he was never executed.

Many Clinton County families were divided by the war issue and furnished soldiers for both sides. A striking instance of this situation is that of Icel Burchett, the husband of Betsy Henry. Burchett had two or three sons in the war on each side and two grandsons on the Union side. Two sons on each side were killed. The father, a Union sympathizer, and his son, Icel, a Union soldier, were killed in their own home, located where T. A. Catron now lives, at Cartwright, by Confederate raiders. One of the soldier grandsons, also an Icel Burchett, is now living at Monticello at the age of 90. The other grandson, Lieutenant George W. Burchett, who once represented this district in the legislature, died recently at Burkesville at the age of 92.

Cumberland City

Soon after the Civil War, Northern capitalists acquired mineral rights in the northern part of Clinton County and opened coal mines at Cumberland City where a thriving village sprang up. A railroad six miles long was built from the mines to Cumberland River, where the coal was loaded on barges. At one time 300 miners were employed at these works. Many cultured families, including the Riddleys, Logans, Paynes and others, lived at Cumberland City during this period. W. A. Hoskins lead in these developments. The mines were long since abandoned and the railroad dismantled and most of the Northern immigrants moved away.

Distinguished Sons

Clinton County has been the birthplace and early home of many distinguished men, including two governors, a United States Senator, and leaders in various fields.

THOMAS E. BRAMLETTE, a war-time governor of Kentucky, was born six miles southeast of Albany, on the farm where Mrs. Porter Maupin now lives and long known as the Hollingsworth place. The old Bramlette log barn is still standing on this farm. Bramlette was born January 3, 1817; admitted to the bar in 1837, at the age of 20; elected to the legislature in 1841; and elected Commonwealth's Attorney in 1849, serving two years. He removed from Albany to Columbia in 1852 and soon afterwards was elected circuit judge, serving six years. At the outbreak of the Civil War he raised a regiment and was commissioned a colonel in the Union Army. In 1862 he was appointed United States Attorney for the District of Kentucky and moved to Louisville. In 1863 he was commissioned a Major General in the Union Army and in August of the same year was elected governor of Kentucky, serving four years covering the end of the war and one of the most turbulent periods in the history of the state. He died January 13, 1875, at the age of 58.

PRESTON HOPKINS LESLIE was born March 8, 1819, in a floorless log cabin on Williams Creek, one mile below Cartwright, seven miles northeast of Albany, the son of very poor parents with a large family. When 16 he was carried to Louisville by his father and left without money, working there for two years. Later coming to Albany, he studied law in the office of Rice Maxey and was admitted to the bar in 1841. Young Leslie married a Miss Black in 1842 and settled in Monroe County. He was elected to the Legislature in 1844 and again in 1850, and to the state senate in 1851. In 1853 he moved to Jackson County, Tennessee, and some years later to Glasgow, Ky. In 1867 he was again elected to the state senate and became its speaker. On February 13, 1871, Leslie was sworn in as governor of Kentucky, upon the resignation of Governor Stevenson, and the following August was elected governor for a four-year term. At the end of this term in 1875, Governor Leslie returned to Glasgow and served a term as circuit judge, but was defeated for reelection by Delancy R. Carr, another brilliant lawyer and native of Clinton County. Some time later, President Grover Cleveland appointed Leslie to be territorial governor of Montana and during this service Montana was admitted to statehood and Leslie became its first elected governor. He died in that state a few years ago at a ripe old age and full of honors. It is said of Leslie that, for all his long and valuable public service, his outstanding characteristics were his deep piety and his devotion to his church. While governor of Kentucky he regularly attended all the services, prayer meetings and conferences of his church and taught in Sunday School, and at the same time and for years afterwards served as moderator of the General Association of Kentucky Baptists.

Champ Ferguson's Muster Roll Champ Ferguson's Muster Roll

Contributed by John German

A muster roll of Champ Ferguson's company was "captured" near Ferguson's White County home in August of 1864 by a Union force commanded by Captain Rufus Dowdy. After the war, at Ferguson's trial, Dowdy testified, "I got hold of some blanks in form of a muster roll and payroll with some names written on it. I got it out there in the woods near Ferguson's house... It was in a box packed up in the hollow of a chestnut tree. The box was held up by some poles punched up the hollow of the tree, and when the boys pulled the poles out the box fell down... I found three sheets or I and some others did." Dowdy did not know who got the other two sheets, but now having made his own peace with Ferguson, Dowdy gave his sheet to Ferguson's lawyers. This muster roll, labeled, "Document 'P'", is attached to the trial case file at the National Archives. According to the roll, all members of the company were enlisted on Nov. 19th '62 in Overton Co. for a period of 3 years; Ferguson was enlisted by John H. Morgan and all others by Ferguson. The handwriting, which is not Ferguson's, is difficult to decipher, and some of the names have been obliterated by folding and deterioration:

At the trial, Captain Dowdy offered these additional comments about this roster: "Here is Sublett, one who was represented as First Lieutenant. Abner Hildreth, 4th Corporal, was one of my neighbors; I understand him to be one of Ferguson's men. Richard Burchett is represented on the roll as being killed in June, 1863, in Wayne County, Kentucky, when in fact he was killed in October, 1862, in Clinton County, Kentucky. I was along when he was killed. Burchett was killed before Ferguson appears in the roll as having been mustered, and such is my recollection. I knew J. T. Smith who is represented on this roll as having been killed about July 12, 1863; I understood him to be one of Ferguson's men. I know A. H. Foster; he was regarded as Second Lieutenant in Ferguson's company. I also know W. R. Latham who is put down as Third Lieutenant; he was regarded as a Lieutenant in Ferguson's company. G. W. Twifford told me he was Orderly Sergeant. I knew Philpot; he belonged to Ferguson's company. Some few of the men I didn't know. Most of them I do know and they were reported belonging to Ferguson's company."

VOICES OF OLD MEN

Two and a quarter centuries ago William Patrick Vaughan rode into the wilderness of Western North Carolina and claimed a (Cherokee maid, Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, as a bride. Two centuries later, a descendant of this union left Eastern Kentucky and married Clarence Hokieshee, full-blood Osage, in Oklahoma. Between those two events Vaughans pioneered Northwest Arkansas and Eastern Kentucky. Many moved on west with the tide of empire.

Following the marriage of Nellie Burchett and Clarence Hokieshee, Prestonsburg attorneys found themselves engrossed with the strangest litigation of their experience as they probed the centuries for a record. Not finding it, they read the past by listening to the voices of old men.

I

The young trader came out on a sharp promontory, brought his string of pack-laden horses to a halt. The evening sun was dropping below the high horizon of the Western North Carolina woods and dusk was entering the deep valleys.

Down under him, the trail descended sharply to the foot of the mountain and then snaked across an expanse of level land, marked by deadened trees where Indian corn had grown. A quarter-mile away, half-hidden by towering hardwoods, the Cherokee tepees stood like giant harvest shocks around a central log council house. Smoke drifted lazily from the bark and skin houses. The trader knew that the Cherokees were partaking of the evening meal.

He swung a long trader's whip, and the horses began the arduous descent, dropping to their haunches at times, weaving and righting themselves with their burden of trade goods. At the foot of the mountain he halted the pack string, examined the tied bundles and with dexterous strokes of the whip drew the animals into a single file. Leading himself, he rode into the Indian village.

The first sentinel dog to bark was the signal for village turmoil. The yelping canines, appearing from half a hundred places, gathered into a giant pack, many of them threatening to bite the horses ankles but discreetly retiring from the poised feet. Simultaneously with the massing of the dogs, warriors, squaws and children erupted from the tepees into the village street. Around William Patrick Vaughan was a swirling mass of dogs and savages.

The Indians would not wait until the next day to view the goods and Vaughan spread them out in the council house. Like spoiled children, they examined the trinkets, cloth, cooking utensils, bright ribbons and scores of other articles. The gunpowder was unloaded and set aside. The rifles were stacked where no sneaking buck could steal away with one without the wary eye of the white man seeing him.

An Indian girl nudged Vaughan and held up a bolt of bright cloth. He turned, stood non-plussed for a moment at the beauty of this child of the forest. She spoke bits of English for traders had been here before. Tradition tells us that Vaughan was so stricken that he forgot his canny Welsh trade talk. Bronzed with the summer suns and lissome as the willows, she moved with the grace and poise among her people. Her father, sub-chief of the tribe, called her Fair-a-Bee-Lunah. It was his way of expressing with broken English and French that his daughter was "fair as the moon..."

In a few days, William Patrick Vaughan and his Indian bride moved out on the trail to other savage villages. They had been married by the simple Cherokee custom of tying a blanket around them. There had been much feasting, merry making and bits of devilry as the Indians celebrated the marriage of their fairest one to the great trader. Vaughan had acquired a bride, but his stock of trade goods was much reduced by the demands of the celebration. He had been easy game, but he felt no loss.

Two sons, probably others, and several daughters were born to the union. The two sons were William and Ayres. William pioneered Tennessee and, finally, Northwest Arkansas. Ayres came with the earliest home seekers to Eastern Kentucky. Their descendants were prolific, wherever they went, naming their children Ayres, Patrick, LeRoy, Gabriel, Burwell, and other Welsh, Irish and English names, for the family had ancient unforgotten roots in the English Isles.

Around ancient Tretower Castle in Wales, so old that antiquarians place it as being built before the Romans came to Britain, the Vaughans lived for hundreds of years. Many were mere yomen, cut off by the laws of primogeniture from inheritance, but many others were prominent. Henry Vaughan, the silurist, was the greatest of Welsh poets. Many met violent deaths. Sir Thomas Vaughan was beheaded by Richard III, Thomas Vaughan was executed by Henry VI for siding with the rebellious Yorks. Sir Roger Vaughan, another Yorkist, fell at the Battle of Danesmoor.

It was the yomen Vaughans, men without title or land, who came to the New World. A title had no significance in America, and land was free. In England and Wales the Vaughans had ambition to serve their kings, in America they served themselves by acquiring property and land. William Patrick Vaughan acquired a competence before he died. His children sold it and with Indian blood coursing in their veins, moved west.

William Patrick, while in his prime, moved with his wife's people to East Tennessee. Here he prospered as he traded continually with the savages. He made long trips east to buy goods and his pack horses were well known along the mountainous trails.

Early in the first decade of the nineteenth century stories of Northwest Arkansas, then part of Missouri Territory, began to drift east, especially carried by the far-off Osage Indians who came to trade with Vaughan. They referred to the country of the Ozarks as The Land of Blue Skies and Laughing Waters. These far-ranging Indians told Vaughan almost unbelievable tales of medicinal springs that wrought wonders in curing the savages of disease. One in particular they told Vaughan, was Magic Healing Spring, the most potent of all. An Osage took a stick and there before the tribal fire, drew a diagram of its location and form. It was half-way up a mountain and flowed into a basin chiseled out of limestone.

Cora Pinkley Call, Vaughan descendant and writer of Eureka Springs, Arkansas, tells of her ancestor's enchantment in her book, Stair-Step Town:

Not only from the Indians did William Vaughan hear of the enchanted land but also from the trappers and 'long-hunters' who described it as a 'land flowing with milk and honey'___a hunters's paradise.

"Itching feet, which had carried William Vaughan down the old Warrior's Trace into the wilds of 'Kaintuck' and Tennessee, now itched for the trail leading into the Land of Blue Skies and Laughing Waters. When finally he could resist it no longer, accompanied by his 'long-hunting' son-in-law, Phillip Harp from Kentucky, he set out, following the Indian traces into what is now Northwest Arkansas."

The nearer the wilderness travelers came to Northwest Arkansas, the more detailed and intriguing became the tales of the magic water springs as told by the Indians. It had been chiseled out by the father of the great Osage chief, Black Dog. It's waters drew fire out of the flint rocks over which it passed. It would cure "pain in the bone" and blindness. Beautiful Flower, daughter of the Sioux chief, had been carried down from the north and cured of blindness.

Vaughan and Harp hurried on north and west, entered what is now Washington county, Arkansas, and after that they wended their way into the rugged areas of the present Madison, Carroll, Boone, and Newton counties. "Magic" springs were everywhere, the most famous on the hills encircling the present town of Eureka Springs.

Everywhere, too, was game. The two Tennesseans hunted and camped up and down White and King's rivers. In a few weeks they left the Ozark hills and went home, determined to migrate soon to the Land of Blue Skies and Laughing Waters.

William Patrick Vaughan however was getting old, the years on the trail having taken its toll. He became known as Old William in contradistinction to his son William, and the westward migration was deferred again and again. Time moved ahead and William died. Soon Fair-a-bee-Lunah followed. They were buried in the Cherokee village graveyard.

II

William Patrick Vaughan and his Indian wife left a considerable estate when they died. It consisted chiefly of land but there were a few slaves and a large amount of money.

The tales he had told his children of the west now bore fruit. William Vaughan, wife and children, and a brother-in-law, Phillip Harp, with his family, headed a trek west. Several other relatives joined the migration. Negro slaves drove the flocks of sheep and herds of cattle. The women and children rode in a wagon, the first overland wagon into what is now Northwest Arkansas. The date was a year just prior to 1828.

The family seat of the Vaughans was at Sweetens Cove, near the present Fayetteville, Tennessee. The Vaughans owned slaves and they had always extended them humane treatment. Among some of them was a genuine affection for the domestic help and the separation of 11-year -old Molly Vaughan from a Negro mammy for whom there was no room in a wagon, was heart-rending. She cried herself to sleep, night after night, as the wagon creaked westward.

The little colony went by way of the present Fort Smith, then Belle Point. They pushed up into the Boston Mountains, then unnamed. Earlier William Vaughan had traveled east and visited the Massachusetts city and ever afterward he was wont to refer to anything big as "Boston". Getting over the mountain range then without anything better than an Indian trail or buffalo trace was a prodigious undertaking. When they had laboriously reached the top of the highest range and were ready to descend, William Vaughan looked out over the ridges and peaks, said: "They certainly are Bostons."

The Vaughans settled in the present Washington county and became its first pioneers. Phillip Harp went on farther to the present Carroll county.

Mrs. Call, the Ozark writer, describes the homes they built for two of them were still standing in 1960.

In her book, WITHIN MY OZARK VALLEY, she wrote:

"They were what is known as the Tennessee type log house, sometimes called the saddle-back type. They had two large rooms below, with a fireplace opening out from an open hallway between the two rooms called a 'dog trot'... There were two upstairs rooms with a fireplace opening out into each room. The houses were built from the finest hand-squared logs to be found in the virgin forest."

Being the first settlers, they had no neighbors for years. Finally, the Stones came into Northwest Arkansas. Molly Vaughan, who had left Tennessee as a mere slip of a girl, grew to womanhood and married Solomon Stone but she never ceased to talk of Sweeten's Cove.

Northwest Arkansas owes much to the Tennessee Vaughans and the Kentucky Harps for it was they who widened out the buffalo traces and Indian trails to take the first wagon into the heart of the Ozarks and found a settlement. They were part of the vanguard of restless America always pushing west.

III

Ayers Vaughan eldest son of William Patrick Vaughan and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, had left the ancestral acres long before his brothers and sisters migrated to Arkansas. They never knew where he went. He had simply disappeared on the frontier. He could have been killed by Indians or met some fatal accident for all they knew.

He was very much alive, though, having reversed the usual trend of migration and gone north to Virginia. Somewhere in his wanderings he found a wife. He was married and had several children when he came to the Big Sandy River and settled near Blockhouse Bottom, which was founded by the Harmons and Auxiers in the early 1790's. One of the sons was William W., named for his father and brother.

Ayres, born 1742, became the patriarch of the Big Sandy Vaughans. His descendants called him Grandsire and by the time he had reached the century mark and died his people had almost forgotten his name. He was Grandsire Vaughan in his lifetime and Grandsire Vaughan to all who recall the family traditions today.

He was proud of his Indian mother and told and retold the story of William Patrick Vaughan and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah. Born to an Indian mother and daily associated with redskin cousins, he became more familiar with his mother's tongue than his father's. All of his life he spoke broken English. To his grandchildren and great-grandchildren he was the most wonderful man in the world as he told Cherokee folk tales and at their behest chattered in the Indian Language.

Farming, a little logging and much hunting occupied his entire life. Like his mother's tribe, he enjoyed the fascination of the chase and the deep solitudes of the woods. Game was plentiful in the Big Sandy valley the first quarter of the nineteenth century and Grandsire, pronounced Groncer by all who knew him, spent days of every season in the wilderness. Only in his extreme old age did he forego the pleasures of the hunt.

We know little of William W., his son, only that like his father there were several children in the family. There was Patrick, who married Susanna Hatfield in 1819; Susannah, one of the younger girls, who married Andrew Riddle in 1837; Elizabeth, still younger, who married William Crider in 1841, just a year before Grandsire died; and LeRoy, one of the eldest of the children. He was born either 1809 or 1810. Burwell was probably one of the children of William W. and grandson of Ayres. He married Susannah Hendricks in 1823 and left a numerous progeny in the valley.

LeRoy was the favorite grandchild of Grandsire Vaughan, probably because he had more Indian attributes than the other Vaughans. Before he died Grandsire had an instrument drawn up in which he conveyed to Le Roy a fine, young colt. In the instrument, now in the Floyd County Court Clerk's record, he was recognized as a grandson. That reference in the future would be an important piece of genealogical evidence as a Grandsire descendant wrought to prove her Indian blood.

Grandsire Vaughan died at the home of a son on the river farm north of Prestonsburg. They buried him in the family cemetery already beginning to fill with its members. Today it is know as the Old Vaughan Graveyard. A simple sandstone marker was erected and his people carved the inscription "A.T.V. Age 100 DSD, Feb. 18, 1842."

In the decades that followed the death of Grandsire Vaughan, his grave became a shrine of mystic attraction for his people and was visited by hundreds. The burial site was a place to reminisce, and to those who were born afterward and never saw him, a place to recall the family traditions. In a century and a quarter since his death the centenarian half-blood Cherokee, who spoke only broken English and often jabbered in the Cherokee language for the amusement of his grandchildren, became a legendary historical figure. There were too many ingredients in his life story for it to be otherwise.

Four years before Grandsire Vaughan died and 98 years after William Patrick Vaughan rode into the Western North Carolina Cherokee encampment, the tribe was driven westward under threat of the white man's bayonets.

The century preceding the Cherokee expulsion had been fruitful. They had begun to live as the white man, owned lands, cattle, slaves and other property. They had built churches, mills and schools. Their great leader, Sequoya, had given them an alphabet and illiteracy almost disappeared. Of the more than 15,000 Cherokee of the region, 147 white men and 77 white women had taken Cherokee mates. They were rising from barbarism to civilization faster than any other people on earth had done.

The affluent society that their leaders envisioned was not to be in North Carolina, however. White men wanted their lands and the state of Georgia began a period of attrition that was reducing the Cherokee to ruin. The faithless federal government, which had signed solemn treaties guaranteeing the home lands of the southern tribes, now capitulated to the expansionists and ordered the removal of the Cherokees, Chickasaws, Creeks, Choctaws and Seminoles to Oklahoma.

Deaf to every protest and appeal, the federal government went ahead with plans for transferring the southern tribes to beyond the Mississippi. __

IV

"Appeals failed to move the government," wrote the historian Alvin M. Josephy, Jr., in his volume, The Patriot Chiefs, "and as the Indians' hopes withered and troops appeared in their villages to force them on their way, mournful streams of exiles commenced to move westward, swelling in numbers each year. In the winter of 1838, the biggest group, more than 15,000 Cherokees who had learned to live like white men and with the guidance of one of their educated leaders, Sequoyah, had developed their own written language, trekked sadly along a twelve-hundred mile "Trail of Tears. Hundreds of people, pushed ahead by soldiers, died of cold and hunger on the route. . ."

Once in Oklahoma, the exiled Eastern Cherokees amalgamated with the Western tribe and formed on of the Civilized Nations of Indian Territory and continued their advance toward civilization.

In 1808, the Osage Indians of Arkansas and Missouri ceded their lands in those states and removed to Oklahoma. Their reservation was established in the present Osage county, where they hold lands and the few thousands of the once powerful tribe enjoy large incomes from oil.

In the years to come, descendants of Grandsire Vaughan also removed to Oklahoma. The historical trail of events that began with William Patrick Vaughan and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah in North Carolina had now begun to enclose a circle ending in the west.

LeRoy Vaughan or Roy, as he was called, exhibited the features and temperament of an Indian more than any other Vaughan, unless it was Grandsire Vaughan, his grandfather. From childhood to old age he was tricky, deceitful and full of deviltry. He has been dead three quarters of a century, yet oldsters tell endless tales about him.

He married the widow, Amanda Mills, in 1829, and following her death, married Julia Byington Scalf, widow of Jerry Scalf, on Buffalo Creek, Pike county. He removed to her cabin just a few miles above the Pike county line and lived there during the Civil War and at the time of his death.

Andrew Jackson Burchett, a grandson who was born in 1869 and knew him well, described him in a deposition in 1946. He was dark, had coal black eyes and straight hair. Burchett was asked if Roy had the appearance of an Indian.

"Yes, sir, all the appearance in the world," he replied. "I remember when we used to go to school on Johns Creek and about that time that they would call us Indian kids."

Many of the oldsters who knew Roy when a youngster deposed in 1946 as to his characteristics. He would manage to start an argument between his mates and when the inevitable fight resulted, Roy would run off and laugh at the combatants. He carried these traits into manhood, delighting always in the discomfiture of those he had bested by a trick.

Typical of the stories told of Roy was how he maneuvered a traveler into trading a fine horse to a "plug." Roy, who was living on Buffalo Creek during the Civil War, had a horseman ride up one evening and ask for accommodations for the night. Roy, always garrulous and fond of company, accepted him as quest and took his horse to the barn. The animal was a fine specimen of the equine breed and Roy hatched a plan in his fertile brain.

Night came and his guest being sound asleep, Roy went out to the barn, removed nails from the animal's shoes and drove others back in place to thoroughly and temporarily lame it.

The next morning Roy went to the barn and fed his horse and that of his guest but reported that the traveler's animal was lame. Examination of the animal revealed no cause and being in a hurry to leave, the traveler asked Roy how he would trade his work mare to the lamed animal. After much verbal jockeying the trade was made and the traveler went his way. Roy immediately went in and drew out the laming nails.

A favorite expression of Eastern Kentuckians is, "Roy wants it all," and the majority of those using it have no inkling of its origin. Yet the story in which it is based is widely current today.

Roy's mother lay on her death bed, oldsters begin the story. All the children were called in and they sat silently around the bedside, awaiting the Grim Reaper. They were sitting in silence when Roy got up from his chair, gestured quietly to his brothers and sisters, said: "Be quiet, I think mother wants to say something."

Going over to the bed, he put his ear down to her face as if listening. The children waited anxiously for Roy to speak.

Curiosity got the best of one and she asked: "What did mother say, Roy?"

Unabashed, Roy affirmed solemnly what his mother's last words were supposed to have been: "She said I could have everything she had but the little broke-leg calf and you could have that."

Thus was born a tale that has lived for three-quarters of a century and given the folk an expression to describe a man who is unashamedly acquisitive.

If you were the raconteur who told the story to a group, some one would be sure to remember the method by which Roy acquired a new pair of boots.

Roy rode horseback down to the mouth of Buffalo Creek in the lean years following the Civil War and threw down the reins of his horse at the store house door. A drummer rode up at the same time and going in to the counter, lay down a new kind of leather boot he was introducing. Roy listened as the drummer expounded on the qualities of the shoemaker's skill.

The devilry in Roy was running deep as he saw the boots examined on the counter.

"By Juks" he said to the drummer, "how you trade those boots to these shoes of mine "

The drummer looked at Roy's torn and worn shoes, laughed and replied: "I don't believe I want to swap."

"By Juks," and that was Roy's favorite expression, "there can't be any harm in trying them on."

The drummer said there could not and Roy pulled off his left shoe, put the new boot on.

"By Juks, it's a fit, let me try the other one on."

When he had both boots on he slipped his spur on over the right one as the drummer was beginning to think he had gone far enough in accommodating this eccentric old man.

Suddenly Roy sprang for the door, vaulted into the saddle and spurred his horse, riding as if possessed up Buffalo Creek Another folk expression, "You can get it like "Roy" was born and survives today.

One of Roy's daughters by Amanda Riddle Mills, was Letitia, or Tish, a beautiful young woman exhibiting physical features of her Indian ancestry. She married Thomas Burchett and moved to Missouri where they died. One of her several children was George Washington Burchett, called Wash by his neighbors. Wash resided on Johns Creek, a mile or less down the creek from the Criders and slightly above that of the Fraley families. He was a hard working, honest and well-liked member the community. An only son was Fred Burchett. Fred married Zellie Ward and lived for many years on Johns Creek just above Souder's Creek.

The yen to go west had always existed with many of the Burchett families and in the early 1880's Andrew Jackson (Jack) Burchett pulled out for Kansas.

Others of his relatives followed. Jack married Grace Randolph in 1887 at Oak Valley, Kansas, but in the late 1890's moved to Oklahoma. Here the family became intimately acquainted with the Cherokees and Osages.

Fred Burchett followed his uncle to Oklahoma in 1929 and in a few years his daughter married Clarence Hokiashe, an Osage. Hokiashe had become wealthy when oil was discovered on the tribal land but he did not live long to enjoy it. He died in May, 1943, leaving his wealth, the widow Nellie and an unborn child. Under federal law governing the inheritance and distribution of the estate of a deceased Osage no person without Indian-blood can inherit the property. Nellie Burchett Hokiashe faced the possibility that her husband's sister, Ruth Hokiashe Robinson, would claim the estate, which she did.

However, Nellie and her father Fred remembered the old, old tradition of the Cherokee blood. She knew nothing of William Patrick Vaughan and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah but they did recall the legendary Grandsire Vaughan. She went to Muskogee, employed Kelly Brown, an eminent attorney. Soon afterward her daughter Priscilla Lynn was born. The stage was set for the strangest and most unusual lawsuit Prestonsburg barristers ever knew.

None of the litigants or any of the attorneys had ever heard of William Patrick Vaughan or Fair-a-Bee-Lunah but they knew that they had to prove they lived, bore children and that Nellie Burchett Hokiashe was direct lineal descendent of the Cherokee maid. To successfully lay claim to the fortune left by Clarence Hokiashe the widow's attorneys would have to probe two centuries of time for two people whose names they didn't even know.

They knew of Grandsire Vaughan, early Big Sandy valley settler, and lawyers turned into genealogists, putting the family tree together by work at the Floyd county (Ky.) courthouse. Nellie Burchett Hokiashe was a daughter of Fred Burchett, he was a son of George Washington Burchett and he was a son of Thomas and Letitia Vaughan Buchett. That was easy to do but much difficulty was encountered in proving that Letitia or Tish was the daughter of LeRoy Vaughan. It was finally done, however, and there for awhile the research stopped.

After much poring over records the instrument by which Grandsire Ayres Vaughan conveyed a colt to LeRoy and in which he was recognized as a grandson, was found.

They were now one generation away from Grandsire Vaughan and this posed a further problem in research. They examined deeds, marriage licenses, checked suits and many other legal instruments. Finally, too, this was solved. The father of Roy Vaughan and son of Grandsire Vaughan was William W. Vaughan.

Back in Oklahoma the battle over the estate shaped up. Ruth Hokiashee Robinson, sister of the deceased Clarence, claimed that since Nellie Burchett Hokiashee was white, she couldn't inherit the property, estimated by many to be worth a quarter-million dollars and with headrights income valued at several thousand dollars per month. The birth of her daughter, Priscilla Lynn, immeasurably enhanced the widow's legal position. Mrs. Robinson's counsel, Oklahoma State Senator J. C. Cornett, became discouraged.

The Indian Agency however wouldn't accept discouragement as a reason for allowing the litigation to lag or lapse. It had to have proof of Mrs. Hokiashee's Indian blood, even if Mrs. Robinson was evincing an intent to quit the suit

Attorney Kelly Brown, Mrs. Hokiashee and others came to Prestonsburg and consulted the oldsters who knew still older Vaughans. They went down to the Old Vaughan Graveyard and stood above the simple sandstone that marked the grave of Grandsire Vaughan. Mrs. Hokiashee was looking down on the grave of an ancestor who was only one generation removed from his Indian mother. She didn't know that, neither did her attorneys. They finally concluded that they had to prove Indian ancestry some way other than by direct genealogical research.

On July 24, 1944, representatives of the litigants and witnesses gathered in the offices of J. W. Howard and W. Porter Mayo in Prestonsburg, to prove, as Kelly Brown said, "a 200-year-old legend."

Brown, a native of Morgan county but a resident of Oklahoma for years, represented the widow and child. Senator J.C. Cornett, attorney for Ruth Hokiashee, sister of the deceased Clarence and claimant adverse to the widow, has designated B. F. Combs of the law firm of Combs & Combs to represent him and his client's interest. Present were L. M. Colville, of Pawhuska, Oklahoma, who had been appointed guardian ad litem for the child, Priscilla Lynn Hokiashee. Witnesses who awaited an opportunity to testify were two former Floyd County magistrates, Will Vaughan and James Clark. Present also were the aged Reuben Taylor and Mrs. Clark.

"Squire Will" deposed under questioning by Brown that he was 79 years of age, was a son of John Vaughan and a grandson of Patrick Vaughan. He said that Ayres or "Groncer" Vaughan was his great-grandfather and was buried in the Old Vaughan Graveyard near Patrick Swirl a few miles below Prestonsburg on the river. He had visited the grave of Grandsire Vaughan many times, usually in company with his father, John Vaughan. He went on to say that he was familiar with the family tradition that the Vaughans had Indian ancestry.

He knew his distant relatives, the Burchetts, only. casually, he added. He had visited their homes in the Johns Creek area a few times in connection with court business. He recalled that his grandfather, Patrick Vaughan, had always said the Burchetts, as well as the Vaughans, had Indian blood.

J. W. Howard continued direct examination of Squire Will and under the probing of the Prestonsburg attorney the witness described the Old Vaughan Graveyard. "A lot of people are buried there," he said. "They are not all Vaughans but they are kin. My grandfather had twelve children and they married and some had other names."

His grandfather, Patrick, had pointed out the grave of Grandsire Vaughan. "If you noticed (when you were there) it was down on a little point. I imagine it was the first grave there.

He never saw Roy Vaughan but once or twice and then when he was a very young boy and Roy was an old man, the former Magistrate and deputy sheriff said when questioned by Colville. He described Roy as rather slim. Of Patrick Vaughan he had more recollection. Patrick was black-headed and hump shouldered. There was a similarity in physical features between Patrick Vaughan and Wash Burchett, grandson of Roy.

B. F. Combs took the witness and Squire Will said he was born in 1865, the last year of the Civil War. His father, John Vaughan, a Confederate soldier, was a prisoner of the Federals when he was born. John came home and lived until the witness was 26 years old. John Vaughan had never talked about their Indian blood, however. Always, it had been Patrick Vaughan and a few others but never John Vaughan. Just why the witness didn't know. John died at about the age of 60 but Patrick lived to his eighties. The lawyers led Squire Will back into the past, had him relate the family legends and tell of remote historical events of the region. He told the story of Jenny Wiley, Harman's Station and Blockhouse Bottom. He said that Indians lived, at one time, at Patrick Swirl.

All of this was obviously of little value as evidence that Nellie Burchett Hokiashee was of Indian blood.

The attorneys excused him, asked Reuben Taylor, aged Prestonsburg resident, to testify. Taylor said he was 79 years old, had lived on Buffalo and Cow Creek. He knew Roy Vaughan well while a young man. He called him Uncle Roy as a matter of respect for his age. The people of the community generally spoke of Roy as being of Indian blood. He hadn't known Tish or Letitia Vaughan, daughter of Roy who had married Thomas Burchett. The Burchetts, who were descendants of Roy Vaughan, had dark complexions, black hair and dark eyes.

Former magistrate James Clark succeeded Taylor as witness. He was 68 years old, he said, a native of Buffalo Creek, near where Roy Vaughan lived. Clark had married Jeanette Spears, daughter of Lafe and Dolly Burchett Spears. He had lived within two miles of Fred Burchett, father of the claimant to the Indian estate. He knew Wash Burchett and his parents, Thomas and Tish Vaughan Burchett.

He had gone to school with Fred Burchett and "The boys would throw up to and accuse Fred of being an Indian." Clark went on to talk about Tish Burchett, said that the old people of the Buffalo and Johns Creek area always said she was part Indian. She left the area when he was very young. He recalled that when Fred Burchett was accused of being an Indian would laugh and agree with them. "He didn't deny it," Clark said. "It didn't make him a bit mad."

Mrs. Clark straightened the Burchett family genealogy out for Brown. She was a daughter of Dolly Burchett Spears and Lafe Spears. Dolly was a sister to Wash Burchett. Other brothers and sisters were Bart, Jack, Hettie, Belle and Lizzie. She was thus a granddaughter of Thomas Burchett and Tish Vaughan Burchett. Tish died in Missouri, Mrs. Clark said.

"I have always been told we had Indian blood in us," Mrs. Clark deposed. "My folks always said we were Indian, pretty much Indian. My mother said we were and that she was the one the Indian blood came through. She had long black hair and was kind of chubby-like woman, wasn't as tall as I am and a little heavier. Her complexion was dark and she had long black hair."

She described her mothers family.

"They all had black hair. Uncle Wash was tall and slim. Uncle Bart wasn't as tall but he was blackheaded and so was Aunt Belle. I never knew Aunt Lizzie. She married Jack Osborne and lived in Missouri most of her life. We went out there on a visit but she was dead then. Aunt Belle married an Akers and lives in Sand Springs, Oklahoma . . . They all had black hair and dark eyes."

Mrs. Clark went back to talk about her grandmothers Mrs. Tish Vaughan Burchett. She said her grandmother had the physical characteristics of an Indian. "She was a little fleshy woman with coal black hair. She used to smoke and I used to light her pipe for her. I was five or six years old when she left here." She concluded her testimony by answering a question of Brown's.

"Your testimony is based on information that has been handed down to you by members of your family long prior to the time that any issue came up about Nellie being of Indian blood?" Brown asked.

"Yes, years ago," Mrs. Clark answered. "I wasn't bigger than nothing when it was talked to me about Indian blood being in us as far back as I can remember."

The taking of depositions was adjourned until the afternoon and Howard introduced for the record a certified copy of a deed of division between Thomas Burchett and Letitia Burchett his wife and others, dated August 3, 1868. At the same time he submitted as evidence a copy of an indenture, dated April 24, 1836, in which Grandsire Ayres Vaughan conveys to LeRoy Vaughan, his grandson, a bay horse colt. This was the instrument that carried Nellie Burchett Hokieshee back to within one generation of her Indian forbear, Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, and William Patrick Vaughan.

That afternoon the attorneys swore former County Judge A. L. Davidson who testified that he knew many of the old Vaughans. Old Buren Vaughan was a brother of Roy Vaughan. He hadn't known Roy Vaughan. It had always been his understanding that the Vaughans had Indian blood. Old Buren Vaughan had "kind of reddish or brownish complexion."

Following Davidson's testimony, the taking of depositions was adjourned until two hours later. At 4 p.m. the attorneys and the notary, Elizabeth H. Layne, met at the store of F. M. Crider at German postoffice on Johns Creek.

Crider, former teacher and now merchant and postmaster, was steeped in the lore of the Vaughan family. His mother, Elizabeth Vaughan, was a sister of Roy Vaughan. Crider knew Roy when he was a young boy and his uncle was old. He had slept with his uncle many times. Roy lived six miles up Buffalo Creek from the postoffice and came down regularly to stay nights at the home of William Crider and Elizabeth Vaughan Crider.

He knew the Burchett family well, also. He was a small boy when Thomas Burchett and Letitia Vaughan Burchett went to Missouri.

Asked if Roy Vaughan, his uncle, had any Indian characteristics, he answered: "Yes, he was one of the trickiest men I ever saw in my life. He would do things through fun and then run off and get away from you. He would start up a racket and after he got a racket started up he would run off."

The incident of the conveyance of the colt by Ayres Vaughan to his grandson Roy must have been of importance in the family for Crider recalled hearing the matter discussed by his parents although it had occurred 108 years before. He didn't know why it had been discussed so often but he had heard them talk about it again and again.

The Indian blood in the family was seldom discussed except by his mother, Crider said. She said she was part Indian. Crider also remembered that Andrew Jackson (Jack) Burchett, Fred's uncle, had claimed to be part Indian.

Having taken Crider's deposition, the attorneys adjourned till 5 o'clock when they met at the home of J. D. Fraley, a few miles distant.

Fraley swore that everybody had always said the Burchetts, Vaughans and even the Criders were of Indian blood. To connect the Criders with the Vaughans he said that a daughter of Roy's whose name he didn't recall, married John Crider. Brown wanted Fraley to specifically name elderly people who had said the Vaughans were part Indians. Fraley named his father, Powell Fraley, his uncle, Bill Fraley, Henry Taylor and Wes James.

The taking of evidence in Eastern Kentucky ceased with that of Fraley. Center of the legal struggle over the estate now shifted back to Oklahoma.

One year earlier, July, 1943, the deposition of Andrew Jackson Burchett had been taken at his home near Talala, Rogers county, Oklahoma. He was very ill and unable to go to Pawhuska to testify. He said that he was 78 years of age and had resided at Talala for "about 30 years." He was a son of Letitia Vaughan Burchett and Thomas Burchett was born in Floyd county, Kentucky, May 6, 1869.

Asked if his mother Letitia was of Indian blood, he replied: "Yes sir, cherokee."

He described his mother. She was dark, had dark eyes and hair "as straight as could be." He said his grandfather Roy had the features of an Indian. He added that when the Burchett children went to school some one was sure to call them Indian.

When Jack Burchett moved to Oklahoma the story of his Indian blood became known and friends tried to get him to enroll as Cherokee.

"Fox McKellopp, who was a very wealthy man, tried to take me down there (Tahlequah) and get me enrolled and I wouldn't go. I told him I wouldn't have the the darn country; I didn't think it would ever amount to much."

Mr. Colville wanted to know how far Prestonsburg was from the North Carolina state line, a matter upon which Burchett had no accurate information. He didn't know for sure that Cherokee Indians had lived in North Carolina but, he was convinced that his Indian blood came through Letitia Vaughan Burchett, who, he added, was buried at Everett, Missouri. His father, Thomas Burchett, "was and Irishman."

Grace Burchett, wife of Jack, added to the mounting testimony of Indian blood coursing through the Vaughan family veins. She was a woman of education, discussed the tradition intelligently.

She was intimately acquainted with Cherokees and Osages, and had known her mother-in-law, Tish Vaughan Burchett. She had dark, black eyes and high cheek bones. She was a very reserved woman, Mrs. Burchett said, and when she did talk of her great-grandfather, Grandsire Vaughan, she said he couldn't "speak plain English; he talked very broken."

Grace Burchett pointed to one of her sons on the porch as having physical characteristics of an Indian but as a bit of evidence of Indian blood showing pictorially in the Vaughans, she submitted a picture of Letitia Vaughan Burchett and Thomas Burchett, her husband.

Attorney Brown took the proffered picture of Letitia Vaughan Burchett, scanned it closely, noting the dark complexion, the high cheek bones, straight hair and black eyes.

"She was Cherokee, alright," he said as he offered the picture to be marked Exhibit A.

The litigation dragged on into late 1944. November 10, that year the interested parties appeared in the Osage County Court and produced all of their testimony. Senator Cornett, asked for delay until November 20. On that date the court handed down a formal decree. It found that the heirs of Clarence Hokieshee, Osage Indian, were his child, Priscilla Lynn, one-half interest, and his widow, of Cherokee ancestry, one-half.

Little legal maneuvering was needed after that to finally close the case. The District Court and the Indian Agency agreed soon afterward to accept the finding of the Osage County Court.

It had been two centuries plus two years since William Patrick Vaughan, frontier trader, and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, Cherokee maid, became man and wife in Western North Carolina. Neither litigants, attorneys or any of the descendants knew their names or story when the gavel came down finally and closed the file On the Clarence Hokieshee estate case.

The past, however, had whispered for centuries and the voices of old men had become a substantive record at Pawhuska. _

A marker for the centenarian, Grandsire Ayres Vaughan, was erected decades ago at his grave in the Old

Vaughan cemetery on the Auxier road. Many of his descendants are buried nearby. Mrs. Cora PInkley Call and her husband, Miles Call, Eureka Springs, Arkansas. Mrs. Call, writer and Northwest Arkansas historian, did much to preserve the story of the early Vaughans of Tennessee and Arkansas. ___Return to Vaughan Page <vaughan.htm>

No work of any value is accomplished alone. This one is no exception. Without the love and family and friends whose willingness to share of themselves, this book would not exist. In 1980 my husband discovered the National Archives in Fort Worth, Texas. His hours of painstaking handwritten notes provide the basis for much of what is here. In 1983 we moved back to Wayne County, living briefly in Monticello and then in Somerset. I spent many happy hours researching in the Wayne County Public Library and the County Courthouse, and exploring cemeteries all over Wayne and Clinton counties (much to the chagrin of my kids). Oh, but what fun to walk the places my husband had known as a boy, and to meet his extended family! His family added to what I did not know; and when they did not know they often pointed me in the direction of someone who did. I will never forget the day I met Demetria Clark, who through her research introduced me to an entire branch of the Clarks I did not know existed. Neither will I forget the day my husband and I stumbled on another "lost" branch of the family down the Boys' Camp Road in Wayne County. Fred Green Clark is gone now, but he and his thirteen children welcomed us into their home with all the hospitality of close kin.

In 1986, our first "laptop" computer entered our lives. Oh joy! It was not long afterward that I discovered genealogy software, and the data began to come together in ways I could not have imagined. Then came the internet, and with it dozens of distant cousins and fellow researchers who have richly contributed the fruits of their own labor.

My special thanks and acknowledgements go to Anna Lutz for her contribution of a lion's share of the early Higginbotham information. She is a veteran researcher who has published her own work on the Higginbotham family, and to this day may be found on the Higginbotham Rootsweb List.

Special thanks also go to James Bell who doubled my database with his research on the descendants of William R. Bell and Milly Honey; to Oscar Franklin who opened a whole new avenue to me by pointing out that Sarah Higginbotham was a Bell; to Rosemary Shields for opening up the Marcum world to me; and to Wilma Gibson for her early Patton contributions.

Time and space would fail me to list all the contributions of my internet buddies, who not only added their own family branches, but also who through their research and documentation confirmed what I could only suspect. They include, but are not limited to, Elsie Adams, Phyllis Bell, Bruce Deck, David Dyer, Ron Hughes, Lisa Leatherman, Marilyn Marlar, Floyd Miller, Larry Rader, Donna Sanders, and Elaine Van Ham. And since this is to be published on the internet, I reserve the right to add the names of others who I may inadvertently have omitted.

Finally, special thanks go to my parents for supplying the only information available to me regarding my own ancestry. As first generation Americans, much of their heritage will remain a mystery. But their innate hunger to learn and deep sense of family have served as the impetus wherewith I have sought out the heritage of my family adopted by marriage.

In 1986, our first "laptop" computer entered our lives. Oh joy! It was not long afterward that I discovered genealogy software, and the data began to come together in ways I could not have imagined. Then came the internet, and with it dozens of distant cousins and fellow researchers who have richly contributed the fruits of their own labor.

My special thanks and acknowledgements go to Anna Lutz for her contribution of a lion's share of the early Higginbotham information. She is a veteran researcher who has published her own work on the Higginbotham family, and to this day may be found on the Higginbotham Rootsweb List.

Special thanks also go to James Bell who doubled my database with his research on the descendants of William R. Bell and Milly Honey; to Oscar Franklin who opened a whole new avenue to me by pointing out that Sarah Higginbotham was a Bell; to Rosemary Shields for opening up the Marcum world to me; and to Wilma Gibson for her early Patton contributions.

Time and space would fail me to list all the contributions of my internet buddies, who not only added their own family branches, but also who through their research and documentation confirmed what I could only suspect. They include, but are not limited to, Elsie Adams, Phyllis Bell, Bruce Deck, David Dyer, Ron Hughes, Lisa Leatherman, Marilyn Marlar, Floyd Miller, Larry Rader, Donna Sanders, and Elaine Van Ham. And since this is to be published on the internet, I reserve the right to add the names of others who I may inadvertently have omitted.

Finally, special thanks go to my parents for supplying the only information available to me regarding my own ancestry. As first generation Americans, much of their heritage will remain a mystery. But their innate hunger to learn and deep sense of family have served as the impetus wherewith I have sought out the heritage of my family adopted by marriage.

No work of any value is accomplished alone. This one is no exception. Without the love and family and friends whose willingness to share of themselves, this book would not exist. In 1980 my husband discovered the National Archives in Fort Worth, Texas. His hours of painstaking handwritten notes provide the basis for much of what is here. In 1983 we moved back to Wayne County, living briefly in Monticello and then in Somerset. I spent many happy hours researching in the Wayne County Public Library and the County Courthouse, and exploring cemeteries all over Wayne and Clinton counties (much to the chagrin of my kids). Oh, but what fun to walk the places my husband had known as a boy, and to meet his extended family! His family added to what I did not know; and when they did not know they often pointed me in the direction of someone who did. I will never forget the day I met Demetria Clark, who through her research introduced me to an entire branch of the Clarks I did not know existed. Neither will I forget the day my husband and I stumbled on another "lost" branch of the family down the Boys' Camp Road in Wayne County. Fred Green Clark is gone now, but he and his thirteen children welcomed us into their home with all the hospitality of close kin.

Information by Myrtle Burchett (Hammond) daughter of Alfred Burchett and Elnora Stewart Burchett

Alfred, born 01 July 1871 in Harrison County, Missouri near Mt. Moriah, was married to Elnora Stewart of Mercer County, Missouri on August 24, 1890. Elnora was the youngest of thirteen children born to William A. Stewart and Delphia Caroline Smith. Elnora was born near Princeton, Mercer County, Missouri on December 24, 1870.

To Alfred and Elnora Burchett were born ten children. Six were born in Missouri: Myrtle, Roy, Dott (May), Grace, Ray, and Teddy. Four were born in Oklahoma. They moved to Oklahoma in 1903 after being flooded out of several homes in Missouri. They came to Oklahoma by covered wagon and moved along with a family by the name of Bailey. They had to wait at St. Joseph, Missouri 2 or 3 weeks before they could cross the flooded Missouri River. They stayed with Theodrick and Polly when they first arrived in Oklahoma. It was here in Woodward county, Oklahoma at her grandparents that Ruth was born 4 February 1904, shortly after her parents arrived in Oklahoma. They lived there until Alfred could file on land nearby and make them a home. Tom was born in their new home there in Woodward County, Oklahoma. They moved to Dewey county, across the river before the twins, Leslie and Lillian were born. They farmed west and southwest of Seiling and Alfred made most of the tools and implements he used in planting and harvesting his crops. He was very ingenious. He could make anything and make it work. Today he would probably be classed as a genius (says Aunt Ruth). One thing he made was a combine. He built a combination of a threshing machine and the platform of a wheat header and made a combine. He was also a good carpenter and built two houses in the town of Seiling. They moved into one of them during their last years. Bruce McKinney recalls that his grandfather was working on a house at the time of his death. He passed away on May 9, 1945 and his wife passed away five days later on May 14, 1945. They are both buried at the Brumfield Cemetery at Seiling, Dewey County, Oklahoma.

The Burchetts were musical, also noted for their high tempers.)

The Burchetts were known to be good with their hands as far back as the French Revolution. They were listed as brick layers, architects and contractors who helped rebuild Paris after the Revolution. The Burchetts were in England as far back as 1200-1300 A.D. Opinion is that they came to England, Ireland, and Wales with William the Conqueror (He defeated King Harold at Hastings in 1066). William was the illegitimate son of the King. He was a duke, and Baron, and later King of England, Ireland and Wales. If this is true, the Burchetts were Normans from Normandy, France.

I would like to thank Aunt Ruth (Burchett) Hand, and her son Kenny Hand, Aunt Vera and Aunt Elda for all their information and clues that helped me to get this far with my research. Without them it would have been almost impossible.

No work of any value is accomplished alone. This one is no exception. Without the love and family and friends whose willingness to share of themselves, this book would not exist. In 1980 my husband discovered the National Archives in Fort Worth, Texas. His hours of painstaking handwritten notes provide the basis for much of what is here. In 1983 we moved back to Wayne County, living briefly in Monticello and then in Somerset. I spent many happy hours researching in the Wayne County Public Library and the County Courthouse, and exploring cemeteries all over Wayne and Clinton counties (much to the chagrin of my kids). Oh, but what fun to walk the places my husband had known as a boy, and to meet his extended family! His family added to what I did not know; and when they did not know they often pointed me in the direction of someone who did. I will never forget the day I met Demetria Clark, who through her research introduced me to an entire branch of the Clarks I did not know existed. Neither will I forget the day my husband and I stumbled on another "lost" branch of the family down the Boys' Camp Road in Wayne County. Fred Green Clark is gone now, but he and his thirteen children welcomed us into their home with all the hospitality of close kin.

In 1986, our first "laptop" computer entered our lives. Oh joy! It was not long afterward that I discovered genealogy software, and the data began to come together in ways I could not have imagined. Then came the internet, and with it dozens of distant cousins and fellow researchers who have richly contributed the fruits of their own labor.

My special thanks and acknowledgements go to Anna Lutz for her contribution of a lion's share of the early Higginbotham information. She is a veteran researcher who has published her own work on the Higginbotham family, and to this day may be found on the Higginbotham Rootsweb List.

Special thanks also go to James Bell who doubled my database with his research on the descendants of William R. Bell and Milly Honey; to Oscar Franklin who opened a whole new avenue to me by pointing out that Sarah Higginbotham was a Bell; to Rosemary Shields for opening up the Marcum world to me; and to Wilma Gibson for her early Patton contributions.

Time and space would fail me to list all the contributions of my internet buddies, who not only added their own family branches, but also who through their research and documentation confirmed what I could only suspect. They include, but are not limited to, Elsie Adams, Phyllis Bell, Bruce Deck, David Dyer, Ron Hughes, Lisa Leatherman, Marilyn Marlar, Floyd Miller, Larry Rader, Donna Sanders, and Elaine Van Ham. And since this is to be published on the internet, I reserve the right to add the names of others who I may inadvertently have omitted.

Finally, special thanks go to my parents for supplying the only information available to me regarding my own ancestry. As first generation Americans, much of their heritage will remain a mystery. But their innate hunger to learn and deep sense of family have served as the impetus wherewith I have sought out the heritage of my family adopted by marriage.

George and Mary were in the 1850 census of Greenfield Township, Gallia County, Ohio, living next doorto his father, Samuel Lambert.

By 1860, however, George and his second wife, Sarah, and family had movedto Washington Township, in Lawrence County, Ohio, in or near the postoffice of Olive Furnace. They were living two houses away from hisfather, Samuel Lambert.

This second wife, Sarah Colley, was born about 1838 in Ohio and probably died before 1867, when he married his third wife, Sarah Hood in Carter County, Kentucky (Carter County Marriage Register, License issued on December 14, 1867. Witnesses: John Bryson and Thomas Hood). He had moved into Carter County, Kentucky by that time and they were listed in the 1870 census.

Sarah Hood must have died by 1877 when Samuel married Mrs. California Bryant (Carter Co., Marriage Register 1872-1902, p.98, at the home of Benjamin F. Quinn; witnesses, Benjamin F. and Sarah Quinn. The License was issued on May 2, 1877).

In the 1880 census, California was widowed and there were two Bryant children living with them, a girl whose name was illegible (Nora?) and Lewis Bryant who was born in 1875 in Kentucky. (Lewis married Jennie B., last name unknown, and was living next door to George and California in the 1900 census and had a son, named Lewis.)

MAY (MARY) DOTT BURCHETT MCKINNEY was born august 27, 1894 near Princeton, Mercer co., Missouri. She was the third child born to Alfred Burchett and Elnora Stewart Burchett. Her sisters, Myrtle and brother Roy preceded her in birth. there were 3 sisters and 4 brothers to follow: Grace, Ray, Teddy, Ruth, Tom, and twins Leslie and Lillian. (Her name was listed as May in the Burchett Family Bible). One of her sisters referred to her as Dorothy Mae. Her family moved to the Oklahoma Territory when she was but a girl of about 7 years. What an awesome adventure that must have been to travel by covered wagon into the area of the nation specifically designated by the government as the Indian Territory. She grew to womanhood along the Little Canadian River in Northwest Oklahoma, Woodward and Dewey counties.

It is thought she was baptized in Deep Creek near Seiling, Oklahoma. Her family attended the Christian Church. It was at church that she became acquainted with Susan Ann (Payne) McKinney. She was hired to help Mrs. McKinney in the summer and fall with her canning. The first time Ed McKinney saw her, she was riding a horse. She had to ford the river to reach the McKinney farm.

She brought into this world six sons and two daughters: James, Wayne, Shirley, Steve, Dave, Stata, Bruce and Larry. The two oldest, James and Wayne, were born in Oklahoma. In 1915 or 16 the McKinneys moved to the Morena Valley of Northeast New Mexico. The rest of the children, with the exception of Larry, were born in the Morena Valley. Larry was born at Miami, New Mexico near Springer

Dott was a small woman, strong but gentle, with the spirit of a pioneer woman. She saw much hardship, but remained close to her God. She always looked for the good in people and tried to teach her children not to be judgmental of others. She spent many years among the Mexican and Native Americans and loved the little dark skinned, black eyed children. She was a friend of the famous pottery maker "Maria", a Santa Clara native. She lived next door to Maria and her family, and would baby sit for Maria and her husband while they were making pottery. In return for baby sitting, Maria would give her pottery. Two early black, and one red pots are still in the family.

Dott was living with her family near Espanola, New Mexico in 1946 when she became ill with cancer. Ed took her to Albuquerque for treatment. He bought the home on Barcelona Drive in southwest Albuquerque while she was in the hospital. She never got to see the lovely little house, as she never left the hospital where she passed away on April 25, 1946.

She had lent four of her sons to Uncle Sam during World War II. They all returned home and in time to see their mother before she left them for good.

She is buried in Sunset Memorial Park just off Menaul Blvd. in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

From her Husband Ed and daughter Shirley, and written by Pauline McKinney

Train Accident

Posted by Jackie <mookie@tir.com> on Thu, 12 Oct 2000

Joseph J. Burchett was killed by a passenger train on or about April 13, 1913 in Kentucky. I am wondering if anyone has ever heard of the accident or has a newspaper article of it. He was a resident of Carter co. Joseph came to Michigan and worked as a logger, in December of 1912 he eloped with my grandmother Della Howard. What I am hoping to find out is did Della go back to Kentucky with Joseph or did she stay in Michigan, and come back after his death. Joseph was married before to Ella Eugenia Huff and had a son Kenneth (info from Travis Burchett) What happened? My grandmother later married my grandfather in Michigan in 1915. If anyone has any information it would really be appreciated. Thanks Jackie

KENTUCKY MAN FATALLY HURT IN AUTO WRECK

BULLETIN IRONTON, O., June 29 - Relatives of a man fatally hurt in an automobile accident yesterday identified him as Clyde Jordan, 53, of Upper Tygart, Ky., shortly after noon today, according to John Rockwood of Frank Feuchter Funeral Home here. The body will be taken to Henderson Funeral Home at Olive Hill this afternoon, he said.

_IRONTON, O., June 29 - A man tentatively identified as Clyde Jordan, 53, of Upper Tygart, Ky. was killed shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday when a car in which he was riding crashed into a truck bed at Third and Vine Streets here. It was Ironton's second traffic fatality this year. Hillard Gipson, 24, of Russell was killed May 1. John Rockwood, an attendant at Frank Feuchter Funeral Home here, said officials were awaiting the arrival of members of Jordan's family for positive identificaiton. Driver of the car, Kenneth F. harris, 25, also of Upper Tygart was charged with reckless driving by State Highway Patrolman James Cooper and is being held in city jail for investigation by Ironton police. Jordan was identified by Harris, official said. There were cards in Jordan's pockets identifying as John Arthur Jordan and Clyde Jordan. Lawrence County Coroner, Dr. Harry Nenni said the operator's license in _Jordan's pocket, identifying him as Clyde Jordan, showed he had brown hair and borwn eyes. The dead Man's eyes and hair were gray. He did not appear to be 53 years of age, the coroner was quoted as saying. The crash occurred when a truck belonging to Marshall Griffith, local concrete contractor, and driven by Fred Hammond was westbound and turning _left into the Henrite Products Co. plant. The car was eastbound and attempted to swerve around the rear of the truck when it crashed into the truck bed. Patrolman Cooper was quoted by city police as saying he stopped the car for investigation a few minutes before the accident but the driver pulled away as the patrolman was parking his cruiser prior to questioning the occupants.

Gladys, as she prefers being called came from a large family. Her dad worked away a lot. She went to school in a little one room schoolhouse and at one time her own sister, Alta, was her teacher. They moved to Middletown about 1953. Gladys got a job at Crystal Tissue where She met Dorothy Cox. Dorothy introduced her to her younger brother Charles, and they were married in October of 1954. The ceremony was at Gladys' parents home on Jewel St. in Middletown, Ohio. She quit Crystal Tissue after Barbara was born then found work at Barkelewe Electric. Charles and Gladys were divorced after 7 years of marriage and she met Roy Gabbard. They were married about 11 or 12 years. During this marriage, Barkelewe became Square D. Gladys quit to try college for a bit, then tried her hand at cosmetology. Even though she eventually went back to work at Square D, she kept her Beauty Shop for quite awhile. She tried marriage a 3rd time, to James Enright. They were married about 10 years.
