-William Everman Census: 1800 was in Montgomery Co Ky
Note: Jacob, Jr and Samuel Everman were on the 1793 tax list of Bourbon Co., Ky. Their brother, William, arrived a few years later. According to Ella Belle Everman Littleton, the family came from someplace on the Potomac River near Alexandria Va. They settled in Harrodsburg, Ky and then moved to Greenup County (now Carter co.). William was buried on a small bench just a short distance from their home which was situated near the mouth of Smith Branch which is now known as the Littleton farm [where?].

Census: 1800 was in Montgomery Co. Ky Census: 1830 Greenup co. Occ: Farmer Note: Carter co. Deaths influenza Greenup co. One male 20-30 One male 40-50 one male 50-60; one female under 5, one female 5-10, one female 50-20, one female 40-50. John built a large log house for a home when he settled in Greenup (Carter) County. The house stood for a century before it was torn down by A. J. Littleton when he brought the property. According to Ella Belle Everman Littleton: When John Everman was building his home, it was necessary to cut away the forest as this part of Ky. was in wilderness. Plenty of wild animals were in the forest, so he planned to kill some deer and other game and have a dance when he was ready to set up house-keeping. But before the house was completed, he took ill and thought he was going to die, so he sent down to the settlement for a preacher. Church services were held in his home, and he became a Christian. This was the first Christian church service held in this part of the country as far as Littleton could find out. After this it became customary to have church at the homes until school houses were built, then church services were held in the school houses. The property had a grove of sugar maples from which they made all the sugar for the families. They usually stored this sugar in barrels in the attic of their homes. During the War a party of Guerilla went into the home of Littleton's grandfather and ate all they could of the supply and wasted quite a bit, but did not do any other damage to their property. In lookups from Rootsweb Carter co., Betty lists John as the son of Jacob and Eleanor Everman. She said he settled on Barretts Creek about 1808 on land purchased from Grayson Tract. He built a large home of yellow poplar logs, and home baked brick. He showed his date of death as 12/6/1856. This does not agree with my date of death. Family has been Union, Republican, and Christian. He died at Swingles Cave.
