

John Tulgay
2nd. great grandfather of Paul L. Tulga

John Tulgay b. in Germany per John Harmon Tulga DC and 1900 census (Harmon Tulga entry and Mary on 1930 census) or Holland (Holland must be correct) d. after Oct 2, 1865

“stowed away on a ship from Ireland to come to the US” in Ohio by 1847 per Judy McCoy: “J. Harmon Tulga’s parents were from a small town close to Hanover, Germany. J. Harmon was in produce according to Dad. J. Harmon was born over here, just after they arrived from Germany. Anna M. Speckman Tulga was first married to a Sanders who died on the boat on the way over; he is buried in Sacred Heart Cemetery, according to Dad. (This makes no sense. If he died on the boat over, he probably would have been buried at sea. Check to see if anything can be found in Sacred Heart Cemetery records. Are there two Sacred Heart Cemeteries? Dad always said it was the one right behind Woodland, but from the Lawrence County Genealogy site, it seems there is a Sacred Heart out in the County somewhere.]” married Mary (unk) per “quote of Uncle Steve by Edna Marie Tulga” b. in Germany per 1900 census Harmon Tulga entry

(see also Anna Margaret (unk) b. ca1813 in Germany or Holland d. Aug. 8, 1873 in Lawrence Co., Ohio per probate records)

there is none in the phone book, it could be she has located elsewhere some time ago or something like that. I'll ask around of some church members.

I have a picture of Grandmother and her two sisters and mother and father and my father told me it wastaken in front of the house they lived at on Sixth Street. I know Grandmother and Grandfather lived in Sedgwick (down on Second Street in Ironton) for a while and then I believe they moved to Green Township in Scioto County (just over the Lawrence County line).
My father and his brothers and sisters, all went to school at the little school house just a little ways down the road. Grandmother died before I was born, so I have no memories of her, but I do remember Grandfather. Both of them, and their daughter Anna Catherine, are
